About

I'm an experienced Full Stack Developer interested in pushing the boundaries of the web. Working at an agency since 2015 I've been fortunate to work on an extremely wide range of projects, gaining experience in both backend and frontend technologies, and also experimenting with the latest tools and technologies. I've worked on various projects with small and large teams, including other departments. I actively participate in open source software, whether it's helping another developer, writing documentation, or bug fixing I strive to commit daily. I'm particularly interested in Electron applications, Progress Web Apps, and Static websites.
